

UK audio visual company Saville Audio Visual, has announced the appointment of Rob Morrison as Head of Sales (South) for the Conference & Live Events division. Rob has been successfully involved in the creative live events and communications industry for over twelve years during which time “he has had the privilege to be involved in some truly exciting, memorable and world class events including a position as the Corporate Hospitality Manager where he led the hospitality sales for the FIFA World Cup in 2006.” As an established and successful sales professional, he has a complete understanding of the requirements of balancing the need for technical, creative and innovative solutions for clients, matching their expectations whilst adhering to event budgets.

Based primarily with the team in Guildford, he will build on the foundations he has established from working alongside Saville for the last six years, to develop the company’s solid reputation within the industry and explore new market opportunities and deliver growth across multiple sectors.

Head of Events for the South, Adam Pike said: “Rob is a vital stepping stone in pushing forward our brand values and extending our commitment to total client satisfaction within the market.”

Commenting on his new position Rob explained: ” Saville are one of the most trusted service providers in the events industry and their reputation for staging and producing events across the UK and around the world is simply first class. I am very excited about becoming a part of this amazing, innovative and creative business and working with the team across the network to build an exciting future. “
