

Central Hall Westminster, central London's largest purpose built conference venue, has started refurbishment work of the undercroft area of the building to create a new 200 capacity event space as part of a £500,000 redevelopment. The new space, which is on the lower ground floor adjacent to the 200 seater public café, will boast natural light from a conservatory area and feature original early 20th century vaulted ceilings that had previously been covered. The room will be available from the beginning of March 2014.

This work follows the refurbishment of the café which was completed in June 2013 and will enable the whole of the undercroft to be opened up to accommodate dinners for 360 and receptions for 700 plus. Paul Southern, Managing Director of Central Hall Westminster, commented: "I am delighted that we have been able to reveal some of the original architecture and create a new and exciting event space. The staff have been sneaking down to look at the renovation as it is amazing to see what had been hidden for so long. We cannot wait to show the area to our clients."
