

HRH The Princess Royal has become Patron of the Royal Three Counties Show. Only last year, the Show was granted a prestigious Royal title – further endorsing its place as one of Britain’s top agricultural events. Organiser The Three Counties Agricultural Society, said it was thrilled with news of the patronage, which would help to strengthen the Royal connection, and give additional credence to its work to promote food, farming and rural enterprise.

Said Chief Executive, Ken Nottage: “We are naturally delighted that Her Royal Highness has agreed to be Patron of our Show. As a resident of Gloucestershire, she has a strong personal connection with one of the counties our organisation represents, and has always been supportive of events here.” This year’s Royal Three Counties Show takes place from 13th –15th of June.
